Diversity in Action at VUSN is updated monthly. The page features a rolling collection of all advertised University, School of Nursing and local cultural events along with national and international nursing conferences having a diversity and inclusion emphasis. In addition, there is a list of current ethnic-minority nursing organizations as well as other nursing organizations, whose focus is on culture, diversity and inclusion as relates to nursing education, practice and research. Explore the monthly announcements and find out what is going on in the area of diversity and nursing.

Enjoy.

Martin Luther King Joint Day of Service, January 19, 2019

The Vanderbilt University Martin Luther King Joint Day of Service event on Saturday, January 19, 2019 will begin at Tennessee State University. All volunteers will share a meal together, have a brief program, and then depart to a variety of service sites (Transportation provided to sites from TSU). Afterwards, volunteers will gather again at TSU for a time of reflection and celebration. Volunteers will be serving at a variety of sites related to food security, veterans’ services and other projects in the community.

Sign-up for specific projects will occur the day of the event, and will be on a "first-come-first-serve" basis.

Please contact Jana Lauderdale at jana.lauderdale@vanderbilt.edu for Vanderbilt Medical Center to sign-up or go to this link: MLK Service Day.

See the schedule and service descriptions HERE.

Contact Dr. Carol Zieglar at mailto:carol.c.zieglar@vanderbilt.edu for additional information.
From the desk of Chancellor Zeppos:

A diverse set of thinkers and visionaries from across disciplines will come to Vanderbilt to directly connect with our community on the most salient and timely topics of the year.

We will celebrate and honor the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. with a series of events:

January 17th, former U.S. Sen. Jeff Flake and This American Life producer Zoe Chace will join Chancellor Zeppos and Distinguished Visiting Professor Jon Meacham.

January 18th, the Bishop Joseph Johnson Black Cultural Center will host an MLK kickoff event at noon. The program will include soul food, fellowship and remarks from the Rev. Teresa Smallwood, associate director of the Public Theology and Racial Justice Collaborative.

January 21st, The 2019 MLK Day Freedom March, the official MLK holiday, will be from 10 to 11 a.m. The march will conclude with a convocation at Tennessee State University’s Gentry Center featuring an address from the Rev. William Barber Jr., president of Repairers of the Breach and architect of the Moral Monday Movement in North Carolina. Vanderbilt is providing shuttle buses to and from campus for its students who wish to participate in the march.

January 21st, Keynote from White House correspondent April Ryan. Admission to the keynote is free for all attendees; however, a ticket will be required for entry. Tickets for Vanderbilt students, faculty and staff are available online at Ticketweb and at the Sarratt Student Center Box Office. Tickets are also available at the same locations for the general public.

February 13th, Equity, Diversity and Inclusion will host a lecture and Q&A with Angie Thomas, author of the best-selling novel The Hate U Give, 6:30 p.m. in Langford Auditorium

In addition to the lecture from Thomas, Vice Chancellor for Equity, Diversity and Inclusion and Chief Diversity Officer James E. Page Jr. is hosting a book club in advance of her visit. Page and Vanderbilt NAACP President Sydney Banks will co-facilitate a discussion of the book. Scheduled for Jan. 31, the free event will take place from noon to 1 p.m. in the College Great Room of E. Bronson Ingram College. Light refreshments will be served. Vanderbilt staff, students and faculty interested in attending the book discussion can receive free copies of the novel The Hate U Give by emailing edi@vanderbilt.edu. Copies will be available until they have all been claimed. Barnes & Noble at Vanderbilt also has the book available for purchase.

To learn more about the lecture and book discussion, visit the Equity, Diversity and Inclusion website. Information about tickets for the lecture will be provided closer to the event date.
Vanderbilt University MLK Commemorative Series Teach-Ins: Call for Proposals

On Monday, January 21, 2019, Vanderbilt University will celebrate the legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King. We will host a day of service, reflection and fellowship focusing on this year’s theme: Our Lives, Our Movement, Our Responsibility.

As in previous years, we are offering the Vanderbilt community the opportunity to engage with the main theme through informative and educational Teach-Ins on that day.

We invite Vanderbilt Faculty, Staff Post-Docs, and Graduate/Professional students to submit proposals for leading these Teach-Ins for the Vanderbilt Community. Proposals should describe a seventy-five minute interactive and engaging educational experience aimed at facilitating meaningful, tangible, and active participation towards activism, desegregation, inclusion and equity.

For further information and to submit your Teach-In proposals (including a brief bio, abstract and the central teach-in objectives), please access the following link: https://www.vanderbilt.edu/mlk/get-involved/teach-in-proposals/

Please note that the deadline for proposals is November 16th, 11:59 p.m.
The MLK Commemorative Series Teach-In Subcommittee will begin reviewing proposals immediately after this date.

Narrative 4 (Tuesdays from 5 PM – 7 PM at OUCRL, 401 24th Ave. S):

The story exchange is a powerful model based on the belief of Narrative 4’s founding authors. They understand that we will see the world, and ourselves, more empathically through the exchange of personal narratives. Today, this belief is supported by the work of neuroscientists, as well as by the experiences of story exchange participants. The story exchanges on the following dates will be led by a Narrative 4 facilitators.

With Beale Street in Memphis, Jefferson Street in Nashville and Vine Street in Knoxville, Tennessee’s cities boast names such as “Music City”, the “Songwriting Capital of the World”, and the “City Music Calls Home”. Tennessean musicians have been at the forefront of the development and commercialization of American popular music. The states musical legacy includes many contributions by African American musicians who have transformed the American music scene. Join us tonight as members of the National Museum of African American Music (NMAAM), Tennessee State Museum and the Country Music Hall of Fame (CMHOFM) discuss their efforts to re-examine Tennessee’s African American music narrative.
