Collaborative Academic-Practice Program

Jannyse Tapp, DNP, FNP-BC
Collaborative Academic-Practice (CAP) Program

CAP is a grant-funded program for Vanderbilt FNP students who have an interest in care of rural and medically underserved communities. Students participate during the spring and summer semesters of the FNP specialty year. The program is comprised of curriculum enhancements that include additional educational content and learning activities, as well as longitudinal clinical experiences with community partners specializing in care of the underserved.
Program Purpose

Increase the Advanced Practice Registered Nurse (APRN) primary care workforce in rural and underserved communities through partnerships with statewide health agencies.
Program Aims

► Place trainees at a partner site specializing in the care of underserved communities in rural and urban settings.

► Assign trainees to one site where they will remain for the entirety of the clinical experience.

► Foster opportunities for employment in underserved communities post graduation.
